DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Issa.

The patent includes a resectoscope with locks (48), optical capacity (24), and cutting elements (16, 18). Moreover, the applicant's claims are replete with obvious design choices ("sloped" - see claim 4; "rod-shaped" in claim 1). See MPEP § 2144.04.

Partially from col. 1:47-65: A typical resectoscope (as seen in Issa) for transurethral resection consists of four main elements. The first element is a rigid telescope for observing the interior of the urinary tract where the surgical procedure is performed. This makes obvious the Applicant's tubular shaft (3). The telescope comprises an objective lens and a series of relay lenses housed within an endoscope barrel or stem (makes obvious the Applicant's guide tube (2)), the stem being connected to an eyepiece housing containing suitable lenses for proper magnification. The second element takes the form of a handle assembly commonly referred to as a working element. The working element can serve as the means for connecting electrosurgical current from an electrosurgical generator to the third element, an electrode assembly (makes obvious the Applicant's cutting element (6)). The working element is also capable of slidably the electrode assembly along the longitudinal axis of the resectoscope. The combination of the telescope, working element, and electrode assembly is locked into a fourth element, a resectoscope sheath. The sheath consists of a tube and a union body and lock assembly (makes obvious the Applicant's rotary lock (10)).

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Wildran et al., Huang et al., Bonnet.
